This course is popular with newly qualified practitioners as well as those seeking further professional development. It can be completed online in your own time and includes a balance of theory and practical application, designed to enable you to easily implement the learning in your setting. The course will take approximately 5 hours in total to complete.

Join Dingley's Promise in transforming inclusive practice in the early years, to give every child the best start.

This course is designed to help you develop the confidence, knowledge and tools to implement any necessary changes to support your setting on its journey to being inclusive.

The units include practical advice and strategies as well as activities which encourage you to reflect on the leadership and management of your setting to help you plan more effectively for inclusion.

They include:

The duties of an inclusive leader and manager; Preparing for inclusion
Business planning for inclusion and Delivering inclusion.

The course content covers the following topics:

- The importance of creating leadership goals and the legal frameworks to refer to when developing an inclusive approach to leadership and management in your setting.
- The considerations when developing a clear vision for your setting and how to embed this whilst working in partnership to build inclusion
- How to create an inclusive curriculum and learning environment
- How to analyse the wider opportunities and threats when setting your short and long term objectives for your setting.
- How to effectively examine the local market, specifically supply and demand for your service and respond to these with effective financial management practices.
- Practical aspects of setting management and partnership working
